our mission

approaching business differently

In 2018, sheconomy set out to explore business from a point of view largely ignored by the media: that of women.

Providing a media platform for female role models from different industries and fields of work, celebrating their successes and encouraging other women to do the same is a central element of our journalistic approach.

Our aim is not primarily to judge but to provide background information and context to relevant issues as well as to proactively discuss missed opportunities and solutions instead.

female +

sheconomy and weconomy are media platforms for all those who want to play an active role in the transformation of our society and work environments.

Our editorial team stands for independent and modern business journalism that promotes empowerment and opposes marginalisation. Because together we are more!

Geschwindigkeit, Qualität, Potenzial: Quantencomputer sind die Zukunft – und Frauen gestalten diese mit.

Wenn die Münze fällt

Bei Stuttgart hat der IT-Gigant IBM den ersten Quantencomputer in Europa aufgebaut. Federführende Forscherin ist Sieglinda Pfändler. Die Quantenphysikerin erklärt, was ein Münzwurf mit einem Qubit zu tun hat, wo Quantencomputer Probleme lösen können – und unterstreicht die Wichtigkeit von Rolemodellen für techbegeisterte Mädchen.

Interview → Michaela Hessenberger

Ein Quantencomputer erbringt unglaublich viel Leistung in Sekundenbruchteilen. Das ohnehin rasanten Tempo auf der Welt überfordert schon viele Menschen. Wozu Quantentechnologie?

SIEGLINDA PFÄNDLER Wir als Gesellschaft profitieren wirklich von dieser Technologie, und sie wird uns ermöglichen, Probleme zu lösen, die davor nicht lösbar waren. Ein Beispiel, das Menschen auf der ganzen Welt betrifft, ist die Produktion und der Einsatz von Düngemitteln. Das verursacht ein bis zwei Prozent der weltweiten CO<sub>2</sub>-Emissionen, also eine Menge. Wenn wir diese Mittel durch den Einsatz von Quantencomputern effizienter produzieren, macht das einen Unterschied für die ganze Erde. Das ist eine große Motivation, die Forschung voranzubringen.

Wie macht ein Quantencomputer das Leben der Menschen heute, in fünf oder zehn Jahren besser?

S. P. Die Entwicklung heute ist wie damals vor etwa 20 Jahren, als die Nanotechnologie kam. Draußen hat man die vielen Fortschritte kaum wahrgenommen. Doch nach und nach ist vieles schneller oder zuletzt erst überhaupt möglich geworden. Das wird auch 2025 und die Jahre darauf so sein, wenn genug Qubits – so nennt man die kleinste Rechen- und Informationseinheit eines Quantencomputers – komplexe Probleme darstellen können. Dann erhoffen wir uns zum Beispiel eine Beschleunigung bei der Entwicklung und Erzeugung von Medikamenten.

Ist ein Quantencomputer für den Alltag aller Leute nützlich – oder nur für großen Systeme wie die Finanzwirtschaft oder die Pharmazie?

S. P. Unsere Quantencomputer sind über eine Cloud zugänglich. Man kann sie ausprobieren. Wir haben mehr als 180 führende Unternehmen, Start-ups und Universitäten, die Zeit auf unseren Maschinen kaufen und eine große Bandbreite an Anwendungen ausprobieren. Wo? Im Versicherungs- und Bankwesen, in der Materialentwicklung und Fer-

Auch Klavierspieler*innen müssen stundenlang üben. So ist es mir mit Mathematik gegangen. Ich musste viel ausprobieren, um Fehler zu korrigieren und Wege wirklich zu verstehen.“
